

Memos – The Oligarch Hunters

Subject: The next sequel in the Series for Crimes Against Humanity

Disclaimer

This memo is set in a fictional world and any similarity to the real world is purely coincidental.

Introduction

Hot on the heels of the fictional film makers roaring success with the Nazi Hunters and the first sequel the Commie Hunters. In the tradition of battling with giant beasts, in the footsteps of the heroes of the ancient world who faced seemingly insurmountable odds. In the hidden places upon the earth where the demon possessed global psychopaths have their lairs.

The Plot – Spoiler alert.

With the people owning nothing after the Great Reset, and a depopulation agenda that made even the tens of millions murdered by the red menace seem tame by comparison. Imagine the best part of a hundred million killed by the soviets, now multiply that by thirty.

On to the stage come our heroes to fight this injustice and track down the international bankers and their minions that know what is best for us. They have a list. Just as they put the ordinary people on a list, just as they made the good seem bad. Just as natives who opposed the genocide of their people were called racists. All was becoming so obvious, as the tracking had become more intense as the laws against free speech became so woolly, no one knew what they could say without offending others. The medical tyranny at first had seemed like it was plausible. They were just trying to help people, contain a deadly disease?

The members of the elite team knew about the false labelling, the statistics. Now they were on a mission, and the people were helping. No amount of fake money or even real wealth was going to be enough to protect the global oligarchs from being brought to justice.

Praise the dear leader.